Investment Thesis

MSSL has one of the most compelling propositions due to various factors –

- a) Diversified revenue profile - derives only 13% of consolidated revenues – Q4FY18 from standalone business & 87% from subsidiaries - SMP (45%), SMR (21%), PKC (14%) & others (7%). Only 12% of MSSL's consolidated revenues are from India with rest coming from plants in 37 countries. For client wise contribution, management has a policy that no single customer, country or component to contribute >15% of revenues, which is a step in right direction for insulating business across vagaries of business cycles).
- b) +Increasing share of OEM wallet - MSSL has made great strides in terms of increasing content per car 3xs in 5yrs, growing market share in its product segments & steady outperformance w.r.t. auto sector.
- c) Structural growth factors - MSSL with well-diversified revenue base & strong relationship with global OEMs will continue to benefit from i) increased outsourcing by OEMs ii) Vendor consolidation as OEMs move towards lesser supplier model to lower costs and iii) higher content per vehicle driven by regulation & consumer aspirations.
- d) Exemplary track record amidst in-organic led growth Management, since year 2000 has been announcing 5yr targets & roadmap. Track record has been exemplary; indeed what makes it special is that targets are not just for size & growth but across range of well thought financial parameters such as focus on high return metrics, which reflects their ethos of financial prudence & balance sheet discipline. It also has track record of acquiring companies of significant size if it deems fit & successfully turning them around.
- e) PKC acquisition to propel position in CV wiring harness segment - Acquisition of the Finnish entity in Jan2017 for €571mn, funded entirely through internal accruals & proceeds from QIP, will open up truck wiring harness segment for MSSL in North America and
- f) Recent Acquisition of Reydel Automotive Group will help MSSL to get exposure to locations like Argentina, Morocco, Croatia, Indonesia and Phillipines where it was looking for expansion, without any capex.

Outlook

We have strong conviction for MSSL's business momentum to be sustained; given its robust order book at key subsidiaries – SMR & SMP that account for >50% of consolidated EBIT along with steady EBITDA margin improvement led by operational cost efficiencies & execution of higher margin orders, continued focus on increasing content supplied per car & managements' proven past track record of delivering ahead of its guidance. Increasing content per car, entry into new geographies & new launches/facelifts by customers will continue to benefit MSSL over medium to long term.
